

DRAGON BONES

Supply List

Leslie Pfeifer

lesliepfeifer@hotmail.com

Book : Accent on Angles - This is an eBook, much cheaper than the original hard copy. You will find it on www.shopmartingale.com and search Accent on Angles. You can download it as a PDF and print either the entire book or just the pages for Dragon Bones. There are other interesting quilts in this book you may want to explore later.

Sewing machine IN GOOD WORKING ORDER

¼" presser foot (#37 or #57 Bernina) or other means of sewing an accurate ¼" seam

100% cotton 50 weight sewing thread (Aurifil recommended) in neutral color

Rotary mat, cutter (with fresh blade-important, cutting multiple layers)

A rotating rotary mat is extremely useful if you have one

Rotary rulers – 12 ½" square and ruler at least 14" long

Thin straight pins (Clover extra fine recommended – transparent yellow/blue heads)

Thread snips

Small sticky-backed labels or roll of 1" masking tape

Sharpie marker to write on labels/tape

Usual sewing notions

Fabric:

For the 50"x50" quilt as shown on page 39 of book:

½ yd each of 5 different dark fabrics

½ yd each of 5 different light fabrics

Backing/binding to be determined

My quilt is MUCH LARGER – 80"x90". If you wish to make a bed quilt similar to mine, you will have to use about 4x as much fabric. I would suggest:

½ yd of 20 different dark fabrics

½ yd of 20 different light fabrics

Backing/binding to be determined

If you choose a theme such as the Oriental one Chris chose, then as many appropriate fabrics as possible as long as you can cut a 11 ½" square from the piece, i.e. minimum 1/3 or 3/8 yard pieces. I used more of his favorites and less of the others. I also used a combination of batiks and quilting cottons and cut the narrow strips from whatever fit color wise. (Good way to use up left over strips/jelly roll pieces and strings.

This can be made for kids using kid prints, batiks, florals (mixed with some compatible tone-on-tones and changes of scale – size of the prints). I'm making one with music fabrics but it would be fun as beach themed or special interests, too....like Chris'.

It is great fun and will take over your imagination, but well worth it.